

UMT Argued At Town Meeting Friday Night

McConnell and Dilworth Oppose Folwell and Mallory in Debate

The hope of achieving by voluntary enlistment is gone, and Universal Military Training is the country's only hope in a world "not now at peace," according to Congressman Samuel R. McConnell. Speaking at a Town Meeting debate on the question of UMT, on Friday night in the Lower Merion High School, McConnell told an audience of nearly 500 that he had been opposed to UMT at the time he was elected, and even until a few weeks ago.

"There is more strife abroad today than at any time during the war," he said. "A small coterie has served notice that they intend to impose their system of living, by force if necessary. Now, I had always hoped this country could achieve preparedness by means of voluntary enlistment, and I voted for every bill which would add inducements to our young men, to join the armed services. But I cannot say the results warrant any confidence in the voluntary program, at this time."

The Congressman reiterated that the only real hope for peace lies in the establishment of world law, and eliminating the causes of war.

"But until such a time as the UN or any other agency makes the establishment of world law practicable, I believe that we as a nation must be prepared for any eventuality. Proper defense requires a lot of money. And I am convinced that the simplest, the cheapest and in the long run the most effective means of doing so is to establish some type of universal military training."

Opposing the views of the Congressman, who lives in Wynnewood, was another Main Liner, Laurence R. Mallory, Jr., a graduate of Haverford College and head of the public education division of the American Friends Service Committee. Mallory opposed universal training on the grounds that preparation for war is a certain method of insuring war; and that it is the duty of the United States, as the possessor of the world's most deadly means of destruction, to lead the way to disarmament and peace.

"The key issue today," he said, "is whether or not we shall continue the down-sliding road to civilization's last chapter. The United States forfeited its right to moral leadership when it dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, and, again, when it committed the senseless outrage on Nagasaki six days later. We now have a duty to these wrecked nations all over the world; and we have the potential to solve their problems. Are we going to do our manifest duty to our fellow man—or are we going to spend our tremendous wealth and productive capacity on the perfection of destruction?"

M-L Polio Club Names Chairmen

25 Are Received Into Membership Monday

Committee chairmen and members were appointed by the President, Ernest L. Brown, at a meeting of the Polio Parents Club of Montgomery County, at a meeting in Norristown, Monday evening.

Committee chairmen are Miss Amanda Bell, Chairman of Education; Mrs. Margaret Dievers, Chairman of Transportation; Thomas Yborra, News Letter Chairman; Miss Earlene Reed, Chairman of Publicity; and Miss Stella Chinchilla, Chairman of Equipment.

An appeal was made for books for shut-ins from 8 to 25 years and for the following equipment: hand-wringers, boxes to raise beds to hospital heights, old wool blankets, victrolas, hospital beds and wheelchairs.

A film entitled "Ability to Work" was presented at the meeting and piano selections were provided by Miss Sarah Beck, of Collegeville.

Twenty-five were received into membership at the meeting.

College Students Sponsor Brotherhood Meeting

A Main Line Brotherhood meeting will be held at Haverford College February 29 at 3.30 P. M., with Chaplain Arthur Kelmel, director of the Philadelphia Roundtable of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, as guest speaker. Sponsored by Haverford College students in cooperation with the National conference and the Main Line Ministerial Association, the meeting will be opened by an address by Dr. Rufus M. Jones, professor emeritus of Philosophy at the college and honorary chairman of the American Friends Service Committee.

A group of selections of liturgical music from the Jewish, Catholic and Protestant traditions will be presented by a choral group of the college.

Realtors Oppose Transfer Tax In Radnor Township

Per Capita or Sales Taxes Suggested As Alternates

A proposal by the Radnor Township Board of Commissioners to levy a one percent real estate transfer tax was opposed by Joseph M. Fronefield, 3d, Wayne realtor and former board president, at an open meeting conducted by the commissioners Monday night. The commissioners will officially vote on the matter this Thursday night when they pass their 1948 budget.

Radnor is the fourth Delaware County township to propose levying the tax under the recently passed State Act 481. Haverford Township Commissioners will vote on a similar tax March 4. Ridley Township passed a transfer tax last month and Aston Township late in 1947.

Other objectors at the Radnor meeting were Robert H. Harris, of Penn Valley, who spoke as representative of the Main Line Board of Realtors, of which he is president, and John W. Dutton, Wayne realtor.

Fronefield, who represented a group of 15 realtors and brokers, charged that the proposed tax was unfair and that it would be likely to hurt long-range real estate markets in the township. "Buyers as well as sellers are watching this," he said, "and buyers are saying they won't come into our township if this tax is levied."

"Act 481 was passed to give governing bodies the right to raise taxes by other methods than real estate, which already has the real burden. It's not fair to make a few people pay for the privilege of moving into our township. It is like asking them to pay dues to join a country club."

He also said that under the act the school board could levy the same tax. "How do we know they won't just that when they make up their budget?" he asked. "Besides, how do you know the state won't take this over if it works for you? As soon as the tax is profitable, they can say—That's a fine idea, boys. We'll take that one. You find another?"

Fronefield suggested that the board levy either a per capita tax or a general sales tax.

Printers Picket Ardmore Plant

ITU Men Charge Lockout by Publisher

Members of the International Typographical Union employed by the Philadelphia Suburban Newspapers, Inc., 311 E. Lancaster Ave., Ardmore, failed to report for work Tuesday morning and formed a picket line in front of the plant.

A spokesman for Chester Local 797, ITU, said members of the Ardmore ITU Chapel voted Monday night to declare a lockout after receiving union authorization for the vote last week. Failure of the publisher, A. E. Hickerson, to arbitrate the discharge of the two ITU men last September 15 was given as reason for the lockout vote.

The men discharged, the spokesman stated, were William McQuare, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Ardmore ITU Chapel, and Harvey Smith, of Stonehurst, Chapel vice-chairman. Arbitration, he said, was required under the terms of the ITU contract then in effect.

The Main Line Times, Upper Darby News and Germantown Courier, three weekly papers published by the company, will be published this week as usual, according to Hickerson.

"Contract of the union was terminated on notice by the local union officers last October," Hickerson said in a formal statement issued yesterday. "The local has since refused to renew it in line with the 'no-contract' policy ordered in convention last August by the national union."

"The present controversy," the publisher continued, "stemmed from the union's charge that the company failed to live up to the terms of the non-existent contract. There is no dispute over working conditions or wages which range from $2.03 to $2.125 an hour for journeymen and which provide for two weeks vacation with pay."

"The union is the same one which has been involved in strikes with the Chicago newspapers during the last four months. . . at Allentown and a score of different locations throughout the country."

Red Cross Sets $200,000 Main Line Goal

1350 Volunteer Workers Launch Campaign Mon.

Will Seek to Reach Every Home; Churches Stress Work of Organization

The Main Line Branch of the Red Cross will launch its annual fund drive Monday with a goal of $200,000.

More than 1350 volunteer workers have been enrolled for the campaign and will canvass every home in Lower Merion Township, Narberth Borough and other Main Line communities.

"There will be no 'one-day drive' as in previous years. Formerly, one Sunday was designated 'Red Cross Sunday,' but it was found that if there was fair weather on the chosen day many persons were not at home, whereas if it rained the solicitors were delayed in their rounds."

This Sunday, however, will be Red Cross Sunday in the churches, where the Red Cross message will be given to the various congregations.

Drive leaders, announcing the start of the 1948 campaign, reminded Main Line residents of President Truman's message: "The American people go to the Red Cross many times during the year. But the Red Cross comes to the American people only once. Remember, and be generous."

"The average GI would have a pretty tough time in his moments of duty if it were not for the social and recreational centers of the American Red Cross," Corp. William Cherry said Sunday.

Corp. Cherry, son of the Rev. Clinton M. Cherry, pastor of the Ardmore Methodist Church, and Mrs. Cherry spoke at a meeting of the Youth Group of the church held Sunday evening. He served four months in Marburg with the Army Classification Center and then was transferred to Berlin, where he served with the division of supply. He returned home last month.

He added that any place the GI goes he can usually find a Red Cross Unit operating with a comfortable lounge and writing room, a snack bar serving ice cream and soft drinks, and a movie or dance in the evening.

The opening event of the week was a tea given Wednesday by Mrs. Osborne Roberts, of Wynnewood, for the workers in that area. Mrs. Roberts, who is colonel for Wynnewood, had as her guest speaker Phyllis McCallmont, Red Cross Fund director at the Valley Forge General Hospital. Miss McCallmont told of the many ways in which Red Cross funds are being used, locally and nationally, and in (Continued on Page Four)

Few Homes Will Get Gas Heating

Company Will Notify Some on Its Waiting List

A survey to determine how many more installations of gas for home heating are feasible in the Main Line area at the present time is being made by the Philadelphia Electric Co.

This was revealed in a letter sent to plumbers, heating contractors and dealers recently.

Company officials emphasized that only customers already on the priority lists in the Ardmore, Chester, Jenkintown or Norristown offices of the company will be considered. Some of the applications date back to 1945.

The company will take the initiative in notifying applicants who are eligible for service and requests customers not to call its offices for information.

"Availabilities will be granted only in those locations where we can assure a sufficient supply of gas to render adequate and satisfactory heating service," the letter said.

Simpson to Be Delegate At State Conference

Ivan A. Simpson was appointed delegate to the annual conference of the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Commissioners, which will be held this year in Uniontown, from June 13 to 15.

Quick Action Saves Life of 6-Year-old Boy

Quick action on the part of his parents, the internes at Bryn Mawr Hospital and Dr. Joseph Atkins, a bronchologist, was responsible last week for saving the life of six-year-old Gary McQuaid.

Gary's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McQuaid, of 1234 Garfield Ave., Manoa, awoke early Sunday morning to find the boy choking. They called a neighboring physician, who ordered him to the hospital immediately.

Internes realized that the child was in a dangerous condition, and called Dr. Hubert A. Royster, a pediatrician. Dr. Royster called upon Dr. Atkinson, a bronchologist at the University of Pennsylvania, and a consultant at the Bryn Mawr Hospital.

Dr. Atkinson performed an emergency operation, and inserted a small tube in the boy's windpipe to allow him to breathe. After this a bronchoscope was inserted and the infection treated. Both doctors asserted that the boy would have died of asphyxiation in a few minutes if the operation had not been performed.

Physicians said Gary is expected to make a full recovery.

155-Unit Development Violates Township Ordinance, Is Opinion

Decision Seen Setting Rigid Standards Here

Lower Merion Township Board of Zoning Adjustment this week rejected proposed plans for a "garden-type" apartment development in Bala-Cynwyd, in what appeared to be a move to set rigid standards for such apartments in Lower Merion.

Penn Park Gardens, Inc., had planned to build 155 apartments on an eight-acre tract at City Line and Belmont ave., and had appealed for special exceptions to the township's zoning ordinance.

In an 18-page opinion signed by Frank Moss, Julius Ziegler and Chairman F. R. Drayton, the board showed by means of charts and tables how the proposed plans failed to comply with the Township Zoning ordinance of 1927. In particular, it pointed out, they violated the restrictions on required garage space and on setbacks.

The board took the appeal under

Will Be One-and-a-Half Mill Increase Over 1947, But Is Less Than Court Allowed; Library and Playground Appropriations Slashed; $1500 for Planning Commission Eliminated

Narberth Borough Council Wednesday night slashed its proposed budget for 1948 from $122,262.79 to $117,012.79, a drop of $5250. The revised budget was presented at a special meeting of Council.

Last November, Council asked permission of the Montgomery County Court to raise its tax rate for general purposes from 15 mills to 18.73 mills. The Council planned to decrease its special purpose tax of 3.5 mills to 2.77 mills, so that the total tax would have been increased from 18.5 (15 general purpose plus 3.5 special purpose) to 21.5 (18.73 general purpose plus 2.77 special).

After public hearings, the Court last week granted Narberth permission to raise its general purpose tax rate from 15 to 17.5 mills, 1.23 mills less than the requested 3.73 increase. The 17.5 mill general tax, added to the 2.77 special purpose tax made an allowable total of 20.27 mills. However, in setting up its revised budget, Council cut the tax down to an even 20 mills, composed of 2.77 special and 17.23 general purpose.

Thus, the Borough tax increase for Narberth property owners this year actually is a net one-and-a-half mill.

In order to balance the budget on the basis of the 20-mill tax rate for 1948, Council pared eight items in the proposed expenditures.

It sliced off a $1500 appropriation designed to provide a toilet-and-locker building at the community playground; kept its appropriation for the support of the Borough Library at $2500, instead of boosting it to $4000, which saved another $1500, and eliminated altogether a $1500 appropriation which had been listed for the Planning Commission.

Other savings included a drop from $600 to $400 for insurance; a $450 drop in the two percent tax collectors' commissions; $100 for parking meter upkeep; elimination of a $2000 appropriation for a street sweeper and addition of a $1500 appropriation for a truck body of one of the borough trucks—a net saving of $500, and a $500 reduction in 1947 accounts payable.

Total cuts amounted to $8250, but the Council raised its "emergency cushion" or contingent fund for unforeseen expenses—from $1000 to $2000, making a net slash of $5250.

The new budget is based on anticipated revenues as follows:

Actual cash balance on hand, $13,658.33.

20-mill tax on the Borough's assessed valuation of $5,014,320 (estimated 92 per cent collectible), $92,263.49.

20-mill occupational tax on $204,625 assessment basis (estimated 90 per cent collectible), $3683.25.

Estimated receipts from unpaid taxes of prior years, $4185.

Miscellaneous receipts (building, oil burner, plumbing, street opening, vendor's and junk dealer's permits, liquor licenses and fines), $3640.

Total, $117,040.07.

Both instrumentalists and vocalists are needed, and any student attending either a primary or secondary school in the area is eligible. Contestants are asked to bring their accompanists.

Auditions for groups, such as choruses and orchestras, are going on now, with the cooperation of the schools.

Those explained that the six-week theatre course will be entirely self-supporting, through tuition and moderately-priced fees for performances. Goodhart Hall, seating one thousand, will be used for the productions. Available for student use will be a second rehearsal stage and a third stage in the Cornelia Olla Skinner Workshop, which is completely equipped for class work and has an auditorium seating three hundred.

THINKING OUT LOUD

Copyright 1948 by CHARLES A. WRIGHT

Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both

Once a month there's big excitement in the advertising department of this newspaper. A large package arrives from Chicago and the advertising men gather around with all the expectancy of boys and girls at Christmas. They rip open the box, take out the newspaper size sheets enclosed, and hurriedly look over the latest pictures and text prepared by Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both.

We don't know if there is a Mr. Meyer and a Mr. Both, but the package comes from the Meyer-Both Co., so we suppose there must have been a Mr. Meyer and a Mr. Both at some time. To thousands of advertising men throughout the land Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both are as well known as "Trade" and "Mark" of the famous Smith Brothers.

Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both or the Meyer-Both Co., if you prefer to be formal about things, are the perpetrators of an advertising "mat" service, designed to make it easier for the advertising man to sell a 10 inch ad instead of a 1 inch ad and to sell a quarter page to the storekeeper who usually takes 10 inches. It isn't done with mirrors or by hitting the storekeeper over the head or anything like that, but by supplying him with lively cuts and copy so that his ad looks and reads like an ad, instead of like a business card.

Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both, as well as their competitors in this interesting field, thrive on the fact that most small storekeepers aren't skilled advertising men and couldn't afford to buy special art work and cuts for their ads even if they had the time and talent to dream up scintillating copy. But by syndicalizing their inspirations to some hundreds of newspapers, Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both are able to supply enough different ads for 30 or 40 newspaper pages for less than it would cost to buy original art and the necessary engraving for one good advertisement.

The miracle of cost-cutting is achieved by mass production and partly by that handy invention known as a matrix or "mat." It's a thin piece of special cardboard on which has been pressed a pattern of a metal cut. Once they've had their engravers make the hundreds of cuts of Easter bunnies and of girls in expensive dresses (or in scanties) and of men holding up their hands and saying "Attention!", Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both can group a lot of them in a page and make a mat of the whole page at once.

The ad man snips the section he wants from the page mat and gives it to the printer, who puts it into a casting box and transforms the paper pattern into a metal cut, ready for printing.

But before that, it's up to the ad salesman to rush to a prospective advertiser and say: "Ah Mr. Jones, wouldn't you like to run this beautiful quarter page ad for Jones' Grocery Store? Look, it shows pictures of meats and canned goods and fresh vegetables; and see that snappy heading about Biggest Bargains Always."

Under ideal conditions, Mr. Jones immediately says yes and thus the ad salesman earns a few pennies more commission and is able to buy a few more groceries for his wife and seven children.

But alas, conditions are rarely ideal. All too often the storekeeper grumbles: "Advertising doesn't pay. I had an ad in your paper, or maybe it was some other paper, ten years ago and not a single person came in and mentioned the ad."

Then the salesman explains the "science" of advertising. Maybe when the storekeeper ran his ad he didn't have the service of Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both to fix up some good cuts and copy. Maybe the ad wasn't big enough. Maybe he didn't advertise often enough.

As long as the storekeeper appears interested there is hope. And if he gets around to asking how much the ad will cost, the salesman's hopes rise. What if the storekeeper does grumble: "Too much," Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both have provided for such contingencies with "Additional Sizes."

"Maybe you're right, Mr. Jones," says the smart salesman. "Maybe a quarter page ad would be too expensive for you. But I just remembered; those very same cuts come in additional sizes, a bit smaller. Suppose I fix up the same ad in half the size and it will only cost you half as much."

If that doesn't clinch the sale, it's not that Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both didn't try hard.

With beating pride, Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both use their own names quite frequently in the sample ads they send out. So, if you look through their service, you'll find ads reading Meyer Grocery Store or Meyer Jewelry Store or Both's Restaurant. Sometimes Mr. M. and Mr. B. combine their initials into a name such as Embee Delicatessen. If they draw up a picture of a pair of cuff links or a set of monogrammed book ends, you may be sure that the initials will be M. B.

Usually the ad salesman cuts out the signature of the Meyer Grocery Store and letters it in as Jones' Grocery Store, with the proper name and address. There's nothing so convincing to many storekeepers as visualizing their own names in large print.

Once in a while a salesman does find a Meyer Grocery Store and then he can show the ad "as is." If Grocer Meyer doesn't buy, the salesman can dangle the same ad, signature and all, in front of Grocer Jones. "What," he may say, is Meyer going to take an ad like that? Well, fix me up a bigger one."

So, in their quiet way, Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both go about their task of bringing advertising art to the masses and of enriching the lives of the advertising salesman and their wives and seven children (each).

There are times when the ad salesman has high affection for Mr. Meyer and Mr. Both—particularly when a large size ad sells right spang off.

But sometimes, we regret to say, this affection cools a bit. Particularly when an advertiser says "put in a cut of violets" and the ad salesman looks through hundreds and hundreds of cuts and finds chrysanthemums and roses and bittersweet and funeral sprays—but no violets.

Then the salesman is likely to say: "You can never find what you want in these things" and out in Chicago or wherever they are Mr. Meyer's and Mr. Both's ears burn as they think of man's ingratitude to man.

Thirty "lost" sketches of World War II by Duncan Miles Terry, of 33 Summit Grove Ave., Bryn Mawr, will be on exhibit at the Art Alliance, 251 S. 18th St., Philadelphia, from February 26 to March 24.

Terry was sent back to the United States while the works were on exhibit and what happened to the sketches after the show remains a mystery.

Last summer, nearly two years later, the Army notified Terry that the sketches had been located in a warehouse on Rhine, No. one including Army Intelligence can explain their disappearance.

Seventeen courses have been listed by officials of the Association sponsoring the affair. They are: Ballroom dancing, contemporary American literature, contract bridge, current events, designing and building today's home, drawing and painting, good taste in interior decorating, how to take photographs, how to write short stories, introduction to the enjoyment of art, more enjoyment from music, old-fashioned square dancing, practical landscape gardening, pottery making, psychology and human relations, public speaking for beginners, and suburban flower and vegetable gardening.
In addition to registering for classes at the school March 8, applications will also be accepted at the principal's office in either Lower Merion or Radnor High Schools any day during school hours.

Icy Roads Cause Four Accidents
Lancaster Ave. Traffic Jammed as Cars Skid

Icy conditions after Sunday's snowfall were partially responsible for a traffic jam on Lancaster Ave., Wynnewood, during which two cars collided and for three other accidents in Lower Merion Township.

About 15 automobiles were unable to make the uphill grade in the westbound traffic lane on Lancaster Ave., near Remington Rd., and by the time police arrived, had skidded all over the road. In the meantime, two eastbound cars collided while attempting to avoid hitting the other cars.

While the police were untangling the jam, all traffic was cut off on Lancaster Ave., between City Ave., Merion, and Wynnewood Rd., Wynnewood. Later, only the westbound lane was cleared until the icy stretch was cinched.

That afternoon, a Philadelphia woman was injured when the car in which she was a passenger was struck by another automobile at City and Monument Aves., Bala.

Police said Ellwood Mayall, 36, of Philadelphia, was driving north on City Ave., and that when he applied his brakes his car skidded into the southbound lane and crashed into a car driven by Carl B. Ruehr, 30, also of Philadelphia.

Ruehr's wife, Ida, 21, was treated at Bryn Mawr Hospital for bruises of the neck.

Late that evening, H. Durston Saylor, 3d, of 27 Penarth Rd., Bala-Cynwyd, escaped injury when his car skidded off Mill Creek Rd., near Dove Lake Rd., Gladwyne, sideswiped a tree and slid down a 15-foot gully.

A. B. Wright, 50, of Philadelphia, was driving east on Lancaster Rd., Overbrook, when, according to police, his car skidded on the ice as he was rounding the curve at Indian Creek Drive, and crashed into a telephone pole. He was not injured.

Seminar Subject Due Process of Law

The final meeting of the Lower Merion Township Seminar on Americanism will be held in the auditorium of the Junior High School Tuesday, March 2, at 8.15 P. M.

Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

The topic for the evening will be "Due Process of Law."

Baldwin School Aids Charities
Services for Past Term Listed by Classes

Miss Julia Billings, faculty advisor of the Baldwin School Service League, last week reported on the charitable activities carried out by the group during the first half of this school year.

The annual Christmas Sale netted $1628.80, most of which will be used for foreign relief. Miss Billings reported. In addition, a special CARE booth at the sale took in $60, and individual donations for CARE netted another 50.

Students in the French classes sent ten CARE packages to French students with whom they are carrying on correspondence. Other groups of girls are sending these packages regularly, to families in whom they have become interested.

The school as a whole adopted a Czechoslovakian child, Eleonora Cerna, and has contributed $180 toward her support. The boarding school pupils are omitting dessert, once a week, and with the money saved is sending a CARE package abroad.

Following a custom of many years' standing, $600 was sent to the Baldwin Day Nursery, in Philadelphia. Red Cross work has included knitting garments, and other articles, and filling 70 Christmas gift boxes.

High Lights

"Man Under Sea," an illustrated talk given by deep-sea diver Harold P. Davidson, was the program for Assembly B, at Lower Merion Senior High School, February 12.

Jean Haig, '48, a member of the assembly committee, introduced the speaker, who told of his diversified experiences under the sea. Davidson stated that many dangers shown in movies are greatly exaggerated. As one example, there are very few accidents from octopus. An octopus cannot squeeze but only hangs on by means of suction cups.

A complete diving uniform, including the diving undergar, rubber mittens, several types of helmets, a diving dress, 30-pound shoes and a heavy iron belt, was shown and explained.

Bob Greenlee, '48, assisted by Don Leith, '48, and Jim Webb, '48, was the guinea-pig for Davidson, who dressed Bob in the complete outfit. Bob, whose weight increased to 300 pounds, would weigh only 60 pounds under water.

A telephone conversation between Greenlee inside the heavy steel helmet and Davidson outside concluded the performance.

Jeanette Freese, junior at Lower Merion High School, was crowned Queen of Hearts at the football team's annual Valentine Dance in Downs Gym last Saturday.

Using the same plan employed at the Senior Prom, ten Valentines, Dottie Lawley, Dottie Boswell, Peggy Smyth, Mimbo Simons, Libby Ridenour, Jill Kershaw, Jean Thomas, Margie Townsend, Nancy Leith and Betsy Burt, chosen by the vote of the entire school and escorted by members of the football team, formed a semicircle around the queen's throne, and each was presented with a heart-shaped box of candy. Their escorts were Jim Barr, Bill Buck, Harry Barton, Dick Oliver, Don Shaver, Al Adams, Graham Hopper, Jim Neese, Hal Lampe and Dick Ware.

Queen Jeanette was then led to the waiting throne, which was draped with the Lower Merion red and white banner by Len Shepard, captain of the football team and master of ceremonies.

After the Queen had received a heart-shaped gold locket and a box of candy, she and her attendants danced with their escorts as Larry Miller's Orchestra played "Moonlight and Roses."

Coches Richard Mattis, John "Fritz" Brennan, Millard Howell, Joseph Quinn and Glen Eitzwiler officiated as chaperones. Many parents of the court were also present to witness the coronation. The gym was decorated with red and white streamers and red hearts.

This was the third annual Valentine dance sponsored by the football squad, Sally Lou Franklin being Queen the first two years.

Television Talk Heard by 100 At B-C Club Meeting

Neighborhood Group Is Told Problems of New Industry

More than 100 members and friends of the Bala-Cynwyd Neighborhood Club turned out Tuesday night to hear Walter L. Lawrence, of the RCA Corporation of Camden, talk on "Television."

Dispensing with the minutes and postponing the chairman's reports, Richard S. Chew, president, gave a short review of the club's accomplishments during the current year.

The speaker, who described television equipment, using a standard house set for demonstration, is a graduate of Temple University and author of a technical paper on television equipment.

Tracing the probable course of television, Lawrence said the present difficulty is that advertisers won't use it as an advertising medium until enough people have sets to make it worth their while.

On the other hand, he said, the people won't buy it until there is a more varied entertainment and until the price comes down.

As a result, he said, the television industry isn't paying proposition at present, but that within the next two years there will probably be enough television set owners to make it a profitable business.

One of the present difficulties, he said, was the fact that the distance is limited to about 100 miles. However, he said, the Bell Telephone Company is working on a linking up process so that in about five years television sets will receive programs from all over the country.

He said there was no end to the possibilities of television, especially for educational purposes, and that in the opinion of television officials, the new field would not materially interfere with other amusement fields, such as the movies, theatre and sports.

Following the talk the audience watched wrestling matches, basketball games and other programs on the demonstration set. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served under the direction of the program chairman, Garner C. Parr.

It was announced that all committee reports would be made at the next executive board meeting to be held March 9.

Local Doctors Named To Centennial Committee

E. Burke Wilford, of Linden and Sycamore Aves., Merion, has been named chairman of the Centennial Committee of Hahnemann Medical Hospital and College, according to an announcement made recently by officials of the institution.

The committee, named to plan the program which will mark the 100th anniversary of the founding of the institution, includes: Dr. William A. Pearson, of the Lakeview Apts., Narberth; Dr. Carl C. Fischer, of 95 Overhill Rd., Cynwyd; Dr. Harry M. Eberhard, of Bowman Ave., Merion; Dr. Charles L. Brown, of 1030 Indian Creek Rd., Overbrook; and Dr. Henry S. Ruth, of 225 Cheswold Lane, Haverford.

ON GRAND JURY

Charles E. Edwards of Narberth, Margaret W. Masie, of Wynnewood, and Daisy Edsall, of Haverford, are among the 24 men and women on Montgomery County Grand Jury for April. It was announced last week by the Jury Commissioners. The panel will convene at the court house on March 22.

Gambling Charge Holds 5 in Jail

Arrested in Raids on Two Local Taverns

Five men arrested in raids on two Main Line taverns were held in $500 bail each for Montgomery County Court on charges of book-making and pool selling. The hearing was held Tuesday night before Justice of the Peace Joseph B. Allen, Jr. There were about 50 spectators.

Roger B. Reynolds, assistant district attorney of Montgomery County, was prosecuting attorney. The defendants, represented by H. Lester Haws, Ardmore attorney, included:

Paul W. Kane, Windsor Ave., Lansdowne, manager, and William E. Harrell, Penn Ave., Bryn Mawr, bartender at the Red Lion Inn, Lancaster Ave., Wynnewood, and Harry McCullough, W. Montgomery Ave., Haverford, an alleged frequent.

Also William J. Dalton, Cricket Ave., Ardmore, proprietor of the Fountain Inn, Cricket Ave., Ardmore, who was also charged with establishing a gambling house, and George Lawson, Drexel Ave., Ardmore, an alleged frequent.

Irvin Bachman, Jr., of Philadelphia, proprietor of the Red Lion Inn, who was arrested with two other men on February 20, was discharged because of lack of evidence.

Anthony E. Kellis, 26, of Ardmore, who placed bets with the five men arrested and charged with book selling, was known as "Mr. X" to other members of the Lower Merion police force.

Sworn into the department last December 1, he "disappeared," but continued to collect his pay. Veteran of six years with the Marines in the Pacific, he was assigned to investigate gambling suspects because he was unknown to the township. He went into uniform Wednesday for the first time.

Kellis said he won a few bets when he picked horses because he liked their names, but his losses exceeded his winnings.

At the hearing, Lower Merion Township patrolman Anthony E. Kellis testified that on various dates between December 9 and February 9 he had placed bets on horses with each of the five defendants, all of whom pleaded not guilty.

The bail was originally set at $1,000 each at the request of the district attorney's office. Reynolds said in explaining the request: "Gambling has become a serious evil in Montgomery County in the last few months. The district attorney's office considers it a rather serious offense and is asking a high bail because we don't want it to appear a slight misdemeanor."

After a sharp objection by Haws, who said it was a sad case of justice if the DA's office could dictate the bail to be set in Lower Merion Township, Reynolds conceded that $500 bail would be sufficiently high, and the bail was so set by Judge Allen.

UMT Argued

plause from the audience, many of whom came from Haverford College, which by Bryn Mawr College and a committee of Main Line citizens, sponsored the Town Meeting. He continued his stand by declaring that World War II was "the war nobody won," and that a third world war would spell the end of civilization. He ended by quoting General Eisenhower's statement, "The world will learn to solve its problems, rather than by means of war, or, within the measurable future, civilization as we know it will perish."

On Malley's side, but for different reasons, was Robert S. Folwell, author and former public relations officer on the staff of General MacArthur. Folwell returned to this country, and to civilian status, only a short time ago. He took the position that universal military training was an ineffective method of solving the problem of preparedness in the world today, and that a more realistic way would be to spend comparable sums of money on technical training, long-range bombers and atomic research.

"Army spokesmen have pointed out that UMT does not even provide description in the real sense. It gives 18-year-olds six months of training—and even that is merely barrack-type training, without any of the specialization which war today demands. Conscription was out-moded in 1921; and its utter inadequacy was dramatically illustrated in 1939, when the highly trained professional armies of Hitler easily overran the conscript soldiers of Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland and France."

Optimists Told To Make Wills

George P. Williams, Jr., Speaker on Tuesday

George P. Williams, Jr., instructor of the Delaware County Real Estate Board Training Course, discussed the reasons for making a will, at the meeting of the Ardmore Optimist Club, Tuesday afternoon, at the Llanerch Country Club.

"The first law providing for the making of a will was passed in England, in 1532," he said. "The individual was permitted to make a will allowing for the provision of one-third of his estate to any one he chose."

"Neglecting to make a will is both foolish and costly," Williams continued. "If a man dies without a will not only must an executor be appointed by the state, but a bond must be posted."

The club Board of Directors met Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. Clayton J. Undercoffer, President.

made to meet the minimum space requirements on an individual lot basis," the board said.

Core of the argument appeared to be Penn Park Garden's contention that its plans should be considered as a single-apartment house, with unified utility services and common ownership.

The board insisted that the project was in fact eight separate multiple dwellings of such size, and so located, as to require an interior road system for access, fire protection and safety.

In an opinion which may be used to settle future arguments regarding "garden-type apartments" in the township, the board declared: "This board is charged with Robert C. Dugy, attorney for Penn Park Gardens, Inc., told reporters Wednesday that the findings came as a surprise to him, and that although it was 'too soon to say what action might be taken, he thought that the plans could be redrawn so as to conform with the Ordinance, without too much difficulty."

the duty of administering the ordinance according to its provisions and has no authority to depart from its standards merely because the 'garden-type apartment' may be more desirable than the conventional type apartment or be so regarded by the proponents.

"Nor may the board substitute fiction for fact in applying the standards of the ordinance. Building permits may not properly be issued for Penn Park Gardens or any other 'garden-type apartments' unless the project meets those standards, subject to such exceptions and variances as this board may lawfully authorize and find within the general purposes and intent of the ordinance, which includes the lessening of congestion on the highways, safety from fire, panic and other dangers, adequate light and air, and prevention of overcrowding of land."

If you want a thing well done, don't do it yourself unless you know how.
